Stunning!

Showjumping Day with Methven Pony Club

Molly Rudge on her beautiful Rocco

It was an absolutely stunning day on Sunday for the Methven Pony Club Showjumping Day held at the grounds last weekend.

Contestants came from all over Canterbury to compete with some lovely riding and jumping on show.

Local Molly Rudge shows how it's done with Rocco, jumping 1.05m with ease.

A number of locals did well at the day - amongst them Meg Nish achieving first on Mustang Winterberry jumping 75cm.

Sophie Sauer came first in the 95cm Hack class on Miss Renegade with Izrael Kingsbury coming 3rd on sporthorse Pioneer Firefly.

Izrael Kingsbury on Pioneer Firefly

"I just love her," Izrael said, "she's such a good horse. I've only had her nine months and she's going so well. I love the adrenaline rush you get with riding and showjumping."

Izrael started riding at age 7 (now 16), at Pam's Arena at Rakaia Gorge and is in the Mt Hutt College Equestrian Team.

It's been a busy year for the Kingsbury family.

"Izrael has been on the Eventing trail all winter and follows the showjumping in summer," said Debbie Kingsbury, Israel's Mum.

District's roading repairs run to schedule

A 1.3km section of Pudding Hill Road has been sealed this week, as fine weather keeps the Council's roading rehabilitation programme on track.

The newly-sealed section, either side of the intersection with Dip Road and Longs Ford Road, will also have new signage.

Group Manager of Infrastructure and Open Spaces Neil McCann said the section included a slippery bend, which would now be a lot safer.

"We've had some good weather that has helped Fulton Hogan stay on schedule, and their team should be leaving the Pudding Hill Road site soon so traffic will return to normal."

Mr McCann said that if the fine weather continued, the work should be completed before Christmas.

"Rehabilitations are the kind of road works that require the most investment and result in significantly improved roads. In most cases, they not only involve digging out failed pavement, and metalcourse construction, but also drainage and widening of the road. All the sites chosen for rehabilitation this summer had more sections of failures or potholes than others in the district, and our aim is to make them better and safer for all who use them."

Council is spending about $2.4 million this summer on rehabilitating around 8.5km of roads. The budget for resurfacing and maintenance of other sealed and unsealed roads is about $8.2m.

Fancy a Culinary Adventure in Italy?

1985 was the start of a journey to Italy for Stephanie Winchester that would be a life changer and it might change yours too! Annie Jacobs

Since then Stephanie has had three more trips that subsequently took her to Positano on the Amalfi Coast and to Ravello to Mama Agata's

Mama's delicious homemade gnocchi

Cooking School. Stephanie's sister is Robyn Lilley. Stephanie first heard about the school through a House and Garden Magazine in 2009, seeing a tiny little advert. Since then she has taken friends to visit.

"I love Italian cooking, the Italian scenery, the people - their zest for life," said Stephanie.

Despite an old website, Mama Agata looked really appealing. Chiara (Mama Agata's daughter), in 1994 decided to develop the cooking school, developed gardens, growing lemons taking over from Mama.

Stephanie's first time attending the cooking school they made eggplant parmigiana, spaghetti of the farmer (making it out of what they had - peasant food, olives, tomatoes, capers, etc), meatballs with Mama's tomato sauce, bolognese sauce with rigatoni, lemon cake. This is food that over the years, Mama made.

"The flavour of the tomatoes was something like I have never tasted before - so intense. The strong sunlight creates extraordinary flavours from hanging on the vine - far sweeter than any I've ever had here."

Of all the people who attend the classes, half are men. Stephanie met Michael Jordan there this year, who had come to attend the cooking school for the day.

Loving what she has experienced so much, Stephanie has decided to share her love and knowledge of the area along with her love of travel with the public. She is the brains behind Amalfi Coast La Dolce Vita Tours. With a maximum of six on each tour Stephanie is organising two tours for 2025: 26 July-2nd August and a second one from 3-10 August. These tours will be held every year.

Arabica Dream Team win Mid Canty Burger Comp

Dream Team Ranga and Katrina have been in business for 11 years at Craft @ Arabica and have won the Ashburton Burger Bash.

Some weeks ago, a gentleman came into the restaurant from Ashburton A & P Association, asking if he may hang up a poster in the shop front. Ranga and Katrina learned that this was the President of the Ashburton A & P, Ben Stock.

Ben shared how they were wondering how Ashburton A & P could help restaurants and eateries in the community. He went on to tell the couple about the "Ashburton Burger Bash" competition and asked if they'd like to enter. Katrina had Ranga had heard about the competition as a couple of their customers had tagged them in on social media.

"The competition required us to use three or more locally produced ingredients - it was about locals supporting supporting locals in Mid Canterbury," explained Katrina.

"We use Netherby Meats for our beef, Southern Alps Honey which is used to glaze our bacon, our eggs come from Produce Pals where we also buy our lettuce, tomatoes onions and whatever else we need. We also use our local Methven supermarkets," they said.

The name of their burger which took out the district's first prize is called "Kiwi As." L & P is used as a glaze on the kiwi burger, mixed with Southern Alps honey. A tantalising secret selection of herbs, crunchy salad veges, homemade tomato chutney and creamy aioli make this burger a succulently, mouth watering flavour bomb. Ranga also adds a little green chilli to the honey/L and P glaze which gives the taste a delicious little lift which is mysteriously tricky to identify.

The overall winner was decided on by votes from customers which included a questionnaire of six questions. Entrants from all over Mid Canterbury poured in - the competition was hotly contested and the supreme winner was announced at the Show.

"We were really excited when we heard the news," the family oriented couple said, sharing the news with son Theo (5) first!

Now they are eagerly awaiting the arrival of the certificate. Sensational Foothills businesses won the first three prize places. 1st Craft @ Arabica, 2nd Panthers Rock and 3rd Stronechrubie.

"Thank you to all of our voters and supporters - we wouldn't have won it without the backing of our customers who encouraged us to enter," Ranga said.

The sun was shining brightly for the MtSS Pet Day. With a fantastic turnout from our community, attendees were spoilt for choice with an array of animals on display.

From classic favourites like sheep, calves, ponies, and dogs to more creative entries such as sheep dressed as The Hoff's sidekick, ponies with fairy wings, and a miniature Highland cow channeling William Wallace, there was something for everyone to enjoy. Adding to the excitement were dazzling farm-inspired creations, ranging from animal replicas to miniature ranches. True to MtSS tradition, the day was crowned by the ever-popular Wheat Head competition, with participants adding unique touches to give their entries human-like characteristics.

A special acknowledgment to the sponsors, parents, and community, as well as the staff who worked tirelessly to pull the day together - all to create lasting memories for our tamariki.

Tailored Support For People In Emergency Housing

Ka Puta Ka Ora Emerge Aotearoa welcomes the Government's new trial initiative announced recently by Associate Housing Minister Tama Potaka, which focuses on tailored support for individuals and couples in emergency housing.

As a partner in this innovative approach, we are eager to contribute to new solutions for those who have experienced prolonged stays in emergency housing.

"This two-year trial is a step towards testing a social investment approach, aimed at moving single people and couples without children from emergency housing motels into stable, private rental accommodation. We are optimistic about the potential of this initiative to make a meaningful difference in the lives people and communities we serve. By focusing on comprehensive, person-centered support, from a multi-disciplinary team, we aim to not only assist up to 60 people/couples in securing permanent housing but also equip them with the tools and resources necessary to maintain their tenancies and thrive in their communities," says Ka Puta Ka Ora Emerge Aotearoa CEO John Cook.

"Ka Puta Ka Ora Emerge Aotearoa remains committed to working alongside our partners and other local organisations, as we implement this trial. By focusing on services such as primary healthcare enrolment, budgeting advice, employment assistance, and community reconnection we can help break down barriers to people securing and sustaining private housing. We look forward to evaluating the impact of this initiative and contributing to the broader goal of reducing the number of people in emergency housing by 75% by 2030," says John Cook. As a for-purpose organisation, Ka Puta Ka Ora Emerge Aotearoa delivers a wide range of health, housing, social, and wellbeing services across Aotearoa. Our diverse housing options include emergency, transitional, and stable social housing, catering to tāngata whaiora and whānau from all communities.

At Ka Puta Ka Ora Emerge Aotearoa, we believe that a stable, warm, and secure home is a foundation for better economic, social, and health outcomes, and we are committed to playing our part in realising this for all.

NATIONAL MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT An Overdue Apology

James Meager

This week I had the honour of representing the Government in Christchurch, along with Minister Matt Doocey and Banks Peninsula MP Vanessa Weenink, at the formal national apology for those who suffered abuse in state care and in faith-based institutions.

It was a profound and sorrowful moment in our nation's history as Prime Minister Christopher Luxon delivered the Government's apology to thousands of New Zealanders who endured abuse, harm, and neglect while in care. The weighty historical wrong hung heavy in Parliament. The Prime Minister acknowledged the deep betrayal of trust that occurred when the state failed in its fundamental duty to protect those in its care.

The Royal Commission's inquiry revealed devastating accounts from more than 2,400 survivors who came forward to share their stories. These testimonies paint a dark picture of our past – one where vulnerable people were not believed when they reported abuse, where staff and carers turned blind eyes, and where perpetrators often escaped justice, leading to the perpetuation of abuse that could have been prevented.

The Government's response includes concrete steps toward accountability and change. A new streamlined redress system will be introduced next year, supported by a $32 million investment to improve the current system's responsiveness to survivors' needs. A $2 million fund will help support organisations that assist survivors in accessing available support services. Perhaps most importantly, legislative changes are being introduced to strengthen protections for those in state care today, including the removal of strip searches of children in care and enhanced restrictions for those working with young children. While no apology can erase the trauma of the past, this national acknowledgment marks a crucial step toward healing. The establishment of a National Remembrance Day on 12th November next year will ensure these experiences are never forgotten, and the removal of memorials of proven perpetrators signals our commitment to honouring survivors rather than those who caused harm.

This legacy of abuse must serve as an eternal reminder of our collective responsibility to protect society's most vulnerable members.

BOWLING CLUB

Allan Hill

When people announce that bowls is a summer sport, they forget to tell the weather gods.

Last Saturday saw Methven 3x4 Interclub teams play Papanui Club in the sunshine, wind, showers, along with freezing temperatures. Unfortunately, it was not good conditions for bowls. Methven were beaten 2 - 1, but picked up the differential. For a second time, Rob Fensom's team looked like salvaging a draw, only to see the opposing skip drive off the Methven shot bowl. Jeff Nowell's team fought valiantly but ended up being defeated by some very outstanding draw bowlers. Brent Mayson again skipping his team to another victory. All three skips played some great shots to keep Methven in the hunt.

Last Tuesday saw Club Championships entries close and draws done. A standout matching was the second section of Pairs already nicknamed the Section of Death. All four teams in the section contain members of the 3x4's teams - Craig Carter, Gary Blackwell, Rob Fensom, Bruce Redmond, Allan Hill Craig Moverley, Aaron Allred and Brent Mayson.

Drawn in front of Club members, no one expected those four team to all end up in one section. Championship games will be Ashburton and Hornby Club Greens until ours is ready.

On behalf of the Club, we wish all competitors good bowling.

Chris Woods

This week the Blue Pub Methven Senior Cricket team travelled to Ashburton to take on a local cricket juggernaut, Allenton Jemmet.

Allenton were the other unbeaten team in the competition and have won the whole thing more than once.

A young team with accomplished Mid Canterbury Cricket representatives, Allenton elected to bat first, to put a total on the board and shift the pressure on to the Billygoats.

A tight bowling performance against some aggressive batting could have been a lot different had Methven taken a few difficult catches and would have had Angus Jemmet (70) a lot earlier. Allenton ended up on 201 for 2, a large total to chase but not impossible on the very small boundaries in Ashburton. The old saying "catches win matches" could never have been more accurate.

The team knew the total would be a challenge but attacked it with confidence. The size of the field is the same for both teams, but a couple of mis-hits and safe hands of Allenton saw a couple of quick wickets. Tight bowling from Allenton saw Methven struggle and when the high score with the bat was 24 (Chris Woods), Allentons total proved too much for Methven who ended up all out for 59. Whilst this seems like a good beating, there were some positive moments in the bowling performance while under pressure.

Methven are back at home this week vs Allenton Warriors (Mana) at 6pm, and look to bounce back strong to stay near the top of the table.

GROW YOUR OWN

Mary Ralston

Planting is the best bit of gardening for many people.

Preparing the soil, planting seedlings and sowing seeds gives a sense of achievement. We can step back and admire the orderly garden and anticipate the harvest ahead.

But as we all know there's no such thing as a free ride in the veg garden. It takes weeding, watering, covering and mulching as well as admiration. The thing is to keep up with these tasks so they don't become overwhelming or onerous.

Brassicas and silver beet planted some time ago may now be big enough to mulch with pea straw. Mulching saves a lot of moisture from being sucked from the soil on a hot or windy day. It also gives a bit of wind protection. Pea straw feeds the soil as well as suppressing weeds and saving moisture; linseed straw is much higher in carbon, lasts longer but doesn't break down to give lovely humus as well as pea straw, so is better for weed control around shrubs in the ornamental garden, and along paths.

Mounding potatoes is good to do once the plants are 10-20 cm high. Simply drag some soil around the potatoes from in between the rows with a hoe. This lets the soil warm up a bit and covers up developing potatoes. I also like to mulch potatoes with pea straw – this keeps them moist and covers up the new spuds.

Protecting lettuces, silver beet and young peas from the birds is essential at my place; maybe not so much in town. It's easy to make covers with hoops of alkathene pipe draped with bird netting from the hardware shop. The edges can be secured to the ground with bent over number 8 wire. Cover strawberries well before the fruit is ripe, or the birds will have the best of them.

And if you haven't finished planting yet, there's months of good growing time ahead...so plant till your heart's content or you run out of space. The true summer veges (zucchinis, beans, cucumbers, corn, peppers, tomatoes, etc) all taste so much better from the garden than the shop...

Solid waste contract tenders evaluation

Council is currently evaluating tenders for its longest and largest contract.

Three tenders were received for Council's solid waste management contract, which involves kerbside rubbish and recycling collection, recycling collection, running the district's resource recovery parks in Ashburton and Rakaia, and operating school and rural recycling drop-off sites. The contract is for nine years, with an option to extend another nine years, and the total value of the 18-year contract is around $88 million. Tenders are currently being evaluated by a group including Council staff, external and independent consultants and legal advisors; two councillors are also observing the process. The tender also includes the introduction of a FOGO (food organic and garden organic) green bin kerbside collection, alongside the existing rubbish and recycling collections.

Infrastructure and Open Spaces Group Manager Neil McCann said a recommendation would be made to councillors in December or January, and the tender awarded following their decision.

"The contract start date is not until 1 September 2026, but a long lead in time is needed to allow for a smooth transition, in the event a new contractor is appointed, and to properly introduce the FOGO green waste service to residents. The contractor will need to deliver bins to households and have the necessary resources, trucks and facilities in place to collect, store and process the green waste.

"We're also hoping to see technology with information and advice about collection days and what can be recycled. This can come as an app or web-based tool, depending on the contractor who wins the contract."

Mr McCann said the solid waste tender was an important tender because almost every household in the district uses solid waste services, whether they put their bins out at the kerb or visit a rural collection site or resource park.
